Advies van het visitatiepanel

Samenvatting bevindingen en overwegingen panel.

Standaard 1, beoogde eindkwalificaties: excellent

There is a relevant set of eight learning outcomes concerning knowledge, research abilities, presentation of knowledge, application of knowledge, working environment, ICT-skills and keeping up knowledge. The orientation is primarily professional, but students are also being prepared for academic research. Students obtain the capacity to thoroughly analyse and interpret legal sources, literature and complex cases; to carry out independent research and formulate an independent opinion on international legal questions, and to develop and formulate appropriate solutions to complex legal problems, based on the norms, practices and methods of the respective field. The learning outcomes are academically robust and clearly aim at a master's level and above.

Pagina 2 van 7 Looked at from an international perspective, the programme has a specific and sufficiently distinctive position in terms of learning outcomes, level, content and method of delivery. Professional orientation is explicitly incorporated in the learning outcomes as well as in the academic skills and attitudes and research abilities. The needs of agencies, institutions and organisations in the field are met with.

The panel judges the programme with regard to standard 1 as excellent.

Standaard 2, onderwijsleeromgeving: excellent

The programme combines in-depth coverage of general international law and its specialised fields with specialised knowledge in two areas of specialisation: International Criminal Law (ICL) and Peace, Justice and Development (PJD). The programme is divided in 7 foundation courses for all students and 4 specialisation courses for ICL and PJD respectively. The programme familiarises students with the practices and working methods of the field, enabling them to work in a variety of contexts. It provides students not only with profound substantive knowledge and legal skills required to understand and apply the law, but with the ability to find creative solutions to problems, solve disputes or adjust to new environments. Parallel to the courses there are a number of assignments, including the moot court cases and a number of case law preparations. Research methodologies are offered from early on in the programme. The programme makes use of an interactive classroom culture, Socratic teaching, and a problem-based approach to require students to reflect critically on the law studied, on the basis of problem scenarios from legal practice, regulatory dilemmas and choices, and review of the case law and jurisprudence of different courts and dispute settlement bodies, including their synergies, differences and interaction. A tutor system facilitates small group learning. Engagement with the professional field is ensured by the working experience of the teaching staff and their large network, input from guest lecturers from the professional field and through various field trips. The programme strives for international excellence and is highly selective. The main selection criterion is the academic record of applicants, most notably the reputation and content of prior academic education in combination with the grades achieved for the qualifying law degree. Additional criteria are the student's motivation and capacity to engage in advanced-level academic study. The panel is impressed by the quality of the staff, the structure and coherence of the programme, the students' facilities and support structure and also by the commitment of the students. All this makes for a dynamic and highly productive teaching and learning environment; this is also the case for the blended learning variant.

The panel judges the teaching and learning environment with regard to standard 2 as excellent.

Standaard 3, toetsing en gerealiseerde eindkwalificaties: excellent

The assessment method for each of the programme's courses is established in advance and indicated clearly in the course descriptions. Within courses, the weighting of the final grade is established according to the percentages indicated for each assessed component. Within the programme as a whole, the courses are weighted on the basis of their ECTS value. This is transparent for students. The directors of the four programmes, together with the Dean, form a 'Quality Assurance Standing Committee'. Through regular reviews of course evaluations, student exit reports, cross-examination of papers, jointly agreed assessment forms and cross-reviewing of theses, it is ensured that the quality and level across all four programmes remains at a consistent, and high level.

Pagina 3 van 7 The thesis must treat a substantive issue of International Law. It is supposed to investigate and present new and innovative findings, and should be of publishable quality. Each thesis is graded by the thesis supervisor and the thesis along with the written findings of the supervisor and the grade are submitted to the programme coordinator. Thesis grading is done on the basis of a common procedure and grading sheet for all four Advanced Studies programmes.

The panel is very impressed by the quality of the theses and can agree with the (generally high) grades that are awarded. Therefore the panel judges the programme with regard to standard 3 as excellent.

Algemene conclusie: excellent

The programme is, in terms of learning outcomes, curriculum, staff and theses produced by the students, certainly of an advanced nature in comparison to regular masters' programmes. The panel wants to stress that the quality (control) of the programme is, to a substantial degree assured by the formal cooperation between the four advanced studies. For a single programme this would be difficult to achieve (and to maintain).

Aanbevelingen

The panel feels that there is some room for further improvement of the already strong coherence in profile between the four programmes and formulates a number of recommendations in this respect. De NVAO onderschrijft deze aanbeveling.
