Bevindingen van het AACSB Peer Review Team

Assurance of Learning

The School has adopted a matrix approach to Assurance of Learning which maps the program-level learning outcomes across the educational goals embedded in the constituent courses. The result is a clear identification of where learning outcomes are taught and where they are assessed. Hence, learning outcomes are now clearly aligned to study and Pagina 2 van 7 assessment methods. The various committees actively monitor the attainment of the learning objectives and intervene to revise learning objectives and assessment as required. As such there is clear evidence that the school has closed the loop on the Assurance of Learning process. This approach is documented for each program.

To be clear, the Peer Review Team did not find any deficiency in relation to Assurance of Learning but rather suggests that some minor tweaks be made to the system to further improve the effectiveness of the system. The commentary below should be read in this context.

The Rotterdam School of Management (RSM) has an Examination Board which comprises members of the faculty appointed by the Dean. The Examination Board's responsibility is specified under Dutch legislation and its powers are wide-ranging and include assurance associated with the quality of assessment. Hence, there is overlap between the Examination Board's responsibilities and the Assurance of Learning process. The internal champions of the Assurance of Learning process at RSM are the program directors and program managers. The School also operates an overarching Programs Committee. While the system generally works in a collegiate setting, the effectiveness of Assurance of Learning rests largely on the interaction between the program administrators and teaching staff. Given the relatively large number of programs at RSM, there is the potential for some patchiness across the spectrum of programs in relation to the effectiveness of Assurance of Learning.

The School employs a variety of structures at the program level that review Assurance of Learning outcomes. For some programs, the use of an advisory board with both internal and external stakeholder representation is clear. However, for other programs, it is less clear to identify the peak structure that integrates all stakeholder feedback. Notwithstanding, the School is able to point to some exemplars of Assurance of Learning effectiveness and resultant curriculum change for specific programs.

Rest assured that the School has taken its approach to Assurance of Learning seriously. There is substantial documentation, formalised processes and measures.

NVAO standards

The level and/or orientation of the learning outcomes fit within the (inter)national qualification frameworks and have been concretised into subject- or program-specific performance levels.

Therefore the Peer Review Team assesses the degree in which the intended learning outcomes of the program MSc Business Administration meets the NVAO standard 1 as satisfactory.

The aggregate of curriculum, staff, services and facilities constitutes an environment conducive to learning which enables students to achieve the learning outcomes. The program has developed a program-wide, transparent and coherent assessment policy, which, however, is not yet pursued by all parties involved.

Therefore The Peer Review Team Team assesses the degree in which the teaching-learning environment of the program MSc Business Administration meets the NVAO standard 2 as satisfactory.

Pagina 3 van 7 Bevindingen en conclusie van het Certiked panel met betrekking tot het gerealiseerd niveau

The panel assesses the level of the theses to be a master level and to demonstrate a corresponding level of complexity.

The panel has verified that the theses of the program address relevant subjects. The subjects of the theses are in accordance with the domain of the program.

The panel assesses the structure of the theses to be adequate. The problem definitions are clear and the hypotheses are appropriate. In one of the theses the hypotheses could have been more profound. The theoretical framework is adequate, although in one thesis the theory could have been more comprehensive. The empirical analyses are in order. In one of the thesis this analysis is interesting. In one of the other theses the data collection contains a few biases. The reflection on the results and the discussion of the conclusions are appropriate. In one of the theses these remain somewhat vague.

The literature review in the theses is considered by the panel to be good in some of the theses, whereas in one thesis this review could have been more profound.

The panel assesses the spelling, style and lay-out of the theses to be appropriate. In some of the theses some errors in the English language and some typographical errors were detected by the panel.

The panel has found no major differences between the quality of the theses of the part time students and those of the full time students.

The examiners of the program have given appropriate grades for the theses. For a few of the theses the panel gives a lower grade than the examiners, whereas for one thesis a higher grade would have been appropriate. The differences between the grading by the examiners of the program and the panel, however, are only marginal.

Assessment

These findings and considerations have led the assessment panel to assess the quality of the theses of the full time as well as part time study mode of the MSc Business Administration program to be satisfactory.
