Bevindingen van het AACSB Peer Review Team

Assurance of Learning

The School has adopted a matrix approach to Assurance of Learning which maps the program-level learning outcomes across the educational goals embedded in the constituent courses. The result is a clear identification of where learning outcomes are taught and where they are assessed. Hence, learning outcomes are now clearly aligned to study and assessment methods. The various committees actively monitor the attainment of the learning objectives and intervene to revise learning objectives and assessment as required.

Pagina 2 van 7 As such there is clear evidence that the school has closed the loop on the Assurance of Learning process. This approach is documented for each program.

To be clear, the Peer Review Team did not find any deficiency in relation to Assurance of Learning but rather suggests that some minor tweaks be made to the system to further improve the effectiveness of the system. The commentary below should be read in this context.

The Rotterdam School of Management (RSM) has an Examination Board which comprises members of the faculty appointed by the Dean. The Examination Board's responsibility is specified under Dutch legislation and its powers are wide-ranging and include assurance associated with the quality of assessment. Hence, there is overlap between the Examination Board's responsibilities and the Assurance of Learning process. The internal champions of the Assurance of Learning process at RSM are the program directors and program managers. The School also operates an overarching Programs Committee. While the system generally works in a collegiate setting, the effectiveness of Assurance of Learning rests largely on the interaction between the program administrators and teaching staff. Given the relatively large number of programs at RSM, there is the potential for some patchiness across the spectrum of programs in relation to the effectiveness of Assurance of Learning.

The School employs a variety of structures at the program level that review Assurance of Learning outcomes. For some programs, the use of an advisory board with both internal and external stakeholder representation is clear. However, for other programs, it is less clear to identify the peak structure that integrates all stakeholder feedback. Notwithstanding, the School is able to point to some exemplars of Assurance of Learning effectiveness and resultant curriculum change for specific programs.

Rest assured that the School has taken its approach to Assurance of Learning seriously. There is substantial documentation, formalised processes and measures.

NVAO standards

The level and/or orientation of the learning outcomes fit within the (inter)national qualification frameworks and have been concretised into subject- or program-specific performance levels.

Therefore the Peer Review Team assesses the degree in which the intended learning outcomes of the program MSc Corporate Communication meets the NVAO standard 1 as satisfactory.

The aggregate of curriculum, staff, services and facilities constitutes a challenging learning environment. The program has developed a program-wide, transparent and coherent assessment policy, which is pursued by all parties involved.

Therefore The Peer Review Team Team assesses the degree in which the teaching-learning environment of the program MSc Corporate Communication meets the NVAO standard 2 as good.

Pagina 3 van 7 Bevindingen en conclusie van het Certiked panel met betrekking tot het gerealiseerd niveau

The panel assesses the theses to be at a master level and to demonstrate a satisfactory level of complexity.

The panel considers the subjects addressed in the theses to be relevant and conform to the learning objectives and the subject matter of the program.

The panel regards the theses to be well structured. The research questions are interesting and the theses demonstrate an original approach to these research questions. The development and the conceptual and theoretical foundation of the hypotheses is satisfactory but could have been more elaborate and more rigorous. The analyses have been performed well, although the method of data collection could have been detailed more. The theses are satisfactory in terms of the reflection upon the findings as well as the discussion of the conclusions, although these could have been more elaborate.

The literature selected is relevant for the subjects addressed and is reviewed appropriately.

The panel assesses the spelling, style and lay-out of the theses to be appropriate. In some of the theses some errors in the English language and some typographical errors were detected by the panel.

The grades the examiners of the program have given for the theses are in line with the grades the panel would have given. For one of the theses the panel, however, would have given a slightly lower grade.

Assessment

These findings and considerations have led the assessment panel to assess the quality of the theses of the MSc Corporate Communication program to be satisfactory.
